January 7, 2014

Dear Members of the Union County Board of Education,

As students, parents and faculty members entered Sun Valley High School on January 6, 2014, they encountered wet hallways and found trashcans spread throughout the building. The trashcans were filled with rainwater that had entered the building through our leaking roof. However, they only provided a small glimpse into how much rain had actually entered the building over the winter break. Knowing that our school's roof leaks, faculty members had proactively emptied and monitored these trashcans throughout the break. Yet they were still full when the students returned due to the rain that Indian Trail had experienced.

In addition, an Assistant Principal's office was damaged due to the leaking roof. A ceiling tile above the Assistant Principal's desk became saturated with rainwater from the leaking roof and collapsed onto the desk below. While the water and ceiling tile damage did not destroy any electronic school property, it did destroy many formal documents. This office continued to flood throughout the winter break.

These challenges are not new to Sun Valley High School. The students, parents and faculty of our school face similar issues each time it rains. Disruptions to the educational environment are continuous when faced with such challenges. The safety concerns pertaining to wet hallways, trashcans filled with rainwater, and saturated ceiling tiles collapsing down from above are immense.

Roof leaks appear throughout the school in various locations and are unpredictable. The Sun Valley High School faculty and staff will continue to keep the safety of our students at the forefront by doing all that we can while faced with these challenges. However, they continue to be safety concerns and educational distractions for our students, parents and faculty.

I sincerely appreciate all your efforts pertaining to the safety of our children in Union County Public Schools. Thank you for allowing me the opportunity to simply provide the Board with a facilities update pertaining to Sun Valley High School.

Respectfully,
Dr. Shaun Poole
